There's no doubt that the world's consciousness regarding the environment has increased in the wake of the coronavirus. One international celebrity, Jennifer Zhang has been an active voice in this area for years. This passion is stronger than ever as Jennifer has leveraged her reach to fight for a cleaner and healthier world environment. In exciting news in this area, the Global Environment Awards recently announced Jennifer Zhang being a winner of its 2020 recognition. The honor will be officially given to the star on June 24th, 2020, in a special ceremony at The Plaza Hotel in Seoul, South Korea. The energy surrounding the awards, which are organized by ACE (Action for Clean Environment) and Woojin Management and Legal Affair Institute, is high.

"I am grateful to have been chosen for this amazing award," commented Jennifer, who is clearly passionate about environmental issues. "There's never enough what we can do to give back to our mother earth. Let's cherish our planet, and continue our work towards a cleaner environment globally."

Jennifer is the only entertainer recognized for the 2020 award in one of its four categories, the rest being: public service, healthcare and business. She proudly represents both the US and her place of birth, China. Her career has seen her engaged in a plethora of activities to help protect and conserve the environment, including some highlights like being part of beach cleaning efforts in Miami Florida and Sabah Malaysia; donating and preparing meals for endangered wild marine animals in Puerto Rico; cleaning and repainting bridges in Chicago's Chinatown; promoting the use of water filters to reduce plastic bottle use; recently creating a music video related to COVID-19 which has received wide views to raise public awareness and to encourage hygienic practices; donating proceeds of music releases to charities such as WWF, NMH and various COVID-19 respond funds; cleaning up looted storefronts in downtown Chicago, and much more.

Expect Jennifer Zhang to continue her work as a musician, model and social media voice, while contributing to environmental and other causes in the months and years to come.
